GERMAN PRISON CAMP HORRORS ARE DISCLOSED AS LEIPZIG TRIALS BEGIN

Testimony of "Water Cure" and Clubbing Dying Prisoners Such as To Make Even Germans Admit That Sergeant Heynen, First to Face Court, Must Be Punished.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Leipzig, May 24.—Testimony that two hundred British war prisoners were allowed to die in one German prison camp within a month; that dying men were clubbed and that the faces of sick men were eaten by vermin until they were unrecognizable will be given at war criminal trials in the supreme court here, according to a statement made today by Chief Inspector Collins, of Scotland Yard, London, who is chief guardian of the British witnesses.

"The case of former Sergeant Karl Heynen, former commandant of a Westphalian prison camp, is just an opener," said Inspector Collins. "It does not compare with the case of Captain Mueller's camp which will come later."

It was in Muller's camp according to the British police inspector, that the dying men were clubbed, and that other brutalities were inflicted. In the contingent of witnesses under Inspector Collins are former soldiers who will testify about conditions in three prison camps, but none who will give evidence as to alleged submarine atrocities.

Nine children were called to testify to the "gentleness" of Heynen, who was the first of the German "war criminals" to be placed on trial. Heynen testified for about two hours in his own defense. He said that when he was put in charge of the prison camp at Muensterheims his only instructions were to make the prisoners work. He was told to use his own methods. Heynen could not speak English and none of the English prisoners could speak German and the camp was without an interpreter.

Heynen admitted blackening the eyes of prisoners, but denied threatening prisoners with a revolver when they pleaded illness and refused to go to work in the coal mines. He said he had never had a revolver in his hands in his life although he had been wounded fighting at the battle front.

There were some lively scenes in court when 16 English witnesses who were present to testify against Heynen, saw the accused man enter court. It was the first time the ex-soldiers had seen their tormentor since 1915.

"Here comes Heinz," called one Englishman and all the others craned their necks. "Doesn't he look sweet?" exclaimed one facetious ex-soldier. "He hasn't changed much except that he has got much thinner."

"Look, Heinz is smiling for the first time," exclaimed one of the witnesses. "I never saw him smile before."

A correspondent asked the Englishmen why they called the defendant Heinz when his name is "Heynen."

"Because Heinz sounds more German than Heynen," explained one of the former prisoners.

Some of the witnesses wore the British uniform. The International News Service correspondent asked J. P. Perry, one of the chief witnesses against Heynen, to give some details of Heynen's ill treatment.

"The worst I can think about is the case of my friend Cross," replied Perry. "Cross reported sick one morning with a bad leg which had been hurt in the coal mines. Heinz asked to see about the leg. When Cross rolled up his breeches Heinz kicked the sore place. Heinz exclaimed: 'You need a doctor; you need a bath.' Then Cross was put into a shower and for more than an hour hot and cold water was poured upon him alternately. Cross screamed like a crazy man. He came out insane and had to be sent away the next day. He died right afterward. I will never forget those screams; I can still hear them."

Heinz's favorite methods of punishment, according to witnesses, were floggings and rubber hose. One witness, an Englishman named Jones, testified that when a captive named Cross was put under the "water cure" his screams were so loud that a crowd of civilians gathered about the barred wire fence of the prison camp to make sure they could hear the screams. Some of the prison camp make the work of the guards easier and the prisoners would not work prisoners and do their work for them so that the prisoners would not starve.

"Sister" memories were displayed but in Heynen and the witnesses and data and dates without an incident's highlight although the circumstances look like about six years ago.

Prisoners were made that Heynen would be found guilty and sentenced to at least two years. Even German court officials said it would be necessary to educate British public opinion after the publication of the testimony brought out here. British London were came all the way from London were disappointed because they were not allowed to collaborate in the prosecution.

There are seven judges sitting on the bench. Some of them are openly hostile to German spectators of the trial. They are complimentary to the British and are hostile to the Germans. Heynen was self-conscious and when under the hottest

MISS SHARPE WILL RECOVER

Woman Who Was Struck In Front Of Her Home By One Of Two Autos Racing On Highway, Has Slight Fracture Of Skull—No Clue To Culprit.

Miss Lucy Sharpe, who resides on the Kingston-West Hurley state road nearly opposite the farm of John Walker, about a mile west of Kingston, was struck by a racing automobile almost in front of her home about two o'clock Monday afternoon and sustained a slight fracture of the skull which, however, is not considered serious.

Miss Sharpe and her sister, Miss Sarah Sharpe, reside together in a two-story brick house on the north side of the road and besides gardening they raise a few chickens. Several chickens had escaped from a wire enclosure to the roadway and Miss Sharpe had gone to the highway to "shoo" them back when she was struck. She used her apron as the most convenient thing to "shoo" the chickens and it hid the approaching automobiles from her.

The racing car, however, probably attracted the attention of the automobilists but they paid no attention to it. There is a straight stretch of highway for a considerable distance at that place, and motorists are fond of speeding when they reach the stretch. Two automobiles began racing when they struck the stretch Monday afternoon and each applied more power to take the slight grade which begins some distance from the Sharpe property.

One of the racing machines passed the other just before reaching Miss Sharpe, and an instant later hit her, throwing her in the air. She landed heavily and was just missed by the second machine.

The racing autos had passed a third machine which had left Kingston ahead of them. Occupied by a Hebrew and his family, he saw Miss Sharpe struck by the first car, narrowly missed by the second and brought his own car to a stop near Miss Sharpe. He helped to carry her in her home, and then resumed his journey, stopping however at the home of George P. Day, whom he told of what had taken place. He did not know the occupants of either of the racing automobiles and did not notice the numbers on the cars. Mr. Day did not procure the stranger's name.

Dr. Daniel Connelly, who was summoned, notified the sheriff's office on his return to Kingston after caring for Miss Sharpe. It was then 5:30 o'clock and it was impossible to obtain information which would lead to the identification of the racing cars or their occupants. The matter was reported to the state troopers who with local officials are at work on the case.

While Ulster county has one conviction to its credit for reckless motoring, apparently more convictions will be necessary to stop reckless speeding. The utmost vigilance will be needed for their apprehension and Ulster county juries will show no sympathy for road hogs of any description.

PLAYGROUND ON LONG HOUSE SITE

A recreation center and playground will be made of the site of the famous old "Long House," which was recently demolished. The work is now progressing. The "Long House" was purchased several years ago by St. Peter's parish and was recently demolished. The Rev. John P. Neumann, pastor of St. Peter's Church, said this morning that when the work is completed it will be a beautiful spot on lower Broadway, and the grounds will be used by the members of the church parish for both recreational and playground activities. A wall will be erected and the entire grounds fenced off from the street. A stairway will also be built leading from the playground to the school grounds above.

Highland Factory Burned.

Firemen from Frenchtown and Millerton fought for hours Saturday evening a stubborn fire which destroyed the factory of Daniel H. Starr at Highland, causing a loss of $20,000. A high wind threatened for a time to spread the blaze and the Thomas Hopper house nearby caught fire, but the blaze was extinguished at once. The factory is located on the state road to Clintonville, near the plant of the Schulte Grape Juice Company.

It is said that the fire has been caused by the negligence of the owner, but this has not been definitely established. The fire was brought out by the fire department and the property was saved.

HARDING ON WAY TO CAPITAL

Mayflower Put to Sea at 1 O'clock This Morning in Raw, Windy Weather—President Had Busy Visit.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, May 24.—President Harding is on his way back to Washington today after his strenuous visit to New York. The presidential yacht Mayflower, with Mr. Harding and his party on board, weighed anchor at 1 o'clock this morning and slipped down the bay from her berth at 96th street. The Mayflower was escorted as far as the Narrows by the police boat John F. Hyland. The president had made two important speeches, reviewed the Twenty-third Regiment of New York state troops and found time for a little sight-seeing in between. More than 2,000 persons greeted the president at a reception before the New York Commercial dinner last night. The weather was raw and windy as the Mayflower passed out to sea on her return trip to the national capital.

ALBERT PROSS WAS FINED $10

Arrested by Sergeant Hanley After William Storms Notified Police That Pross Had a Gun and Had Threatened to Shoot Him.

Albert Pross of Second avenue was fined $10 in police court this morning by Judge Schirick after Pross had pleaded guilty to carrying a revolver without first obtaining a permit to do so. Pross was arrested about 9:30 o'clock Monday night in Edward Gallagher's saloon on Delaware avenue by Sergeant Hanley, who found the revolver in Pross's hip pocket. The gun was not loaded.

From the story as brought out it developed that Pross had married the former wife of William Storms, and that earlier in the evening Storms called up the police and informed them that Pross had a gun and had threatened to shoot him. Pross married Mrs. Storms some time after she had obtained a divorce from her husband.

FEW FRENCH COMING

To Watch Georges Try For Heavyweight Title.

Paris, May 24.—The delegation of French admirers of Georges Carpentier at the rinks in Jersey City in July when the Frenchman meets Jack Dempsey will be small, according to indications today. A tourist company which tried to get 400 persons to sign up to go to America for the fight with $400 covering all expenses of the trip announced today that only 200 had signed their intention of going. It was decided to keep the list open a while longer, but the project will be abandoned entirely if the French do not show more enthusiasm. The $400 was to cover the fare both ways and hotel expenses while in America.

ADVERTISERS WHO LOST.

Only Their Own Delay in Furnishing Copy is Responsible.

Last week a number of advertisements were omitted from The Freeman because the copy was not received on time. The rule is that copy for all later advertisements must be in the composing room the day before publication. By almost supernatural exertion those who violate this rule have been protected at times, but some of them are now to be the losers on busy days. There are excellent reasons for this rule—reasons that have more to do with the welfare and interests of the advertisers than they have to do with the interests of The Freeman.

IRISH VOTING FOR PARLIAMENT

DeValera and Craig Issue Appeals To Republicans and Unionists As Balloting For Northern Legislature Begins—Craig Claims 32 Out Of 52 Seats.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Dublin, May 24.—Balloting is taking place today in Ulster province for the new Northern Ireland parliament which was created under the Irish home rule (Partition) act. This is the first election to be held under the new law which created two parliaments for Ireland, one in Dublin, the other in Belfast. It was generally conceded that Eamonn de Valera, "President of the Irish republic," Michael Collins, the so-called commander in chief of the Irish Republican Army, and Joseph Devlin, the nationalist leader, would all win seats in the Belfast parliament. They are standing for election in constituencies that are strongly anti-Unionist.

It is probable that the final results will not be known until Thursday morning. The Belfast parliament will contain 52 members. Sir James Craig, leader of the Unionists and premier-designate of Ulster, claims his party will have 32 seats, which will give it a good working majority. De Valera, on the eve of the election, issued a public appeal for unity, saying: "The Orange and Green together can command the future of Ireland. Vote for an Ireland that will be peaceful, prosperous and happy. Vote against war with your fellow countrymen. Vote that brother's hand may not be raised against brother. Vote that there will be an end to partition, disunion and ruin."

Sir James Craig issued an appeal to his Ulster constituents asking for "one loyalty to Great Britain."

"Scatter the enemy's hopes for a Republic," said Sir James. "Let our friends throughout the empire see that we are determined to uphold the cause of loyalty."

Strong precautions were taken throughout the whole province to prevent election disorders.

General Crozier, their former commander, who quit in 1916, demands investigation of Crown Forces in Ireland.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, May 24.—The sensational allegation that members of the crown forces in Ireland have been guilty of terrorism, murder and arson, was contained in disclosures by General Crozier, former commander of the black and tan police, which were printed in the Daily News today.

General Crozier, who resigned because black and tan policemen, whom he had suspended for looting, were reinstated over his head, charged that members of the crown forces discussed themselves as Republicans and wished a post office in Kilkenny.

General Crozier made the further sensational declaration that a police cadet had confessed to him that he was the murderer of the Rev. Father Griffith and had buried the body.

General Crozier said he could throw light upon the "massacre" at Croke Park. He demanded an immediate public investigation of the activities of crown forces in Ireland.

BITTER FIGHT ON NAVY BILL

And Strength of Borah Faction Makes It Sure Republicans Will Have Hard Time Putting Through Proposed Army Increase.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, May 24.—The senate battled today over the proposed increase of navy pay from $133,202,263 adopted by the house to $154,359,285 recommended by the Republican-controlled senate naval affairs committee.

The increased appropriation carried in the pending navy supply bill is intended to take care of a proposed boost in navy personnel from 100,000 as agreed to by the house, to 120,000 as advocated by Republican leaders of the senate.

Senators Borah of Idaho and Lenroot and LaFollette of Wisconsin, Republicans, joined with Democratic senators in attacking the suggested increase, which they criticized as "unnecessary extravagance."

Although still dazed by the sudden collapse of opposition to the Borah proposal for a disarmament conference between the United States, Great Britain and Japan and by the swift defeat of the Alameda, Calif., navy supply base project, Republican members of the senate naval affairs committee, who include Senators Lodge of Massachusetts and Penrose of Pennsylvania, professed confidence in their ability to pass the committee's increased personnel amendment.

It was agreed that no effort should be made to force reconsideration of the vote by which the Alameda project was rejected, and that it should be dropped in an effort to save the rest of the bill from the determined opposition of Borah and others of a formidable group of Republican senators, who, entering into a coalition with the Democratic side, have, it was admitted, placed the Republican majority naval program itself in jeopardy.

The defection of 19 Republican senators from the Republican leadership on the Alameda project was construed by senators generally as indicating that the Republican leaders are likely to continue to experience serious difficulties in their efforts to put increased appropriations through. The bitter fight over the navy bill is expected to be followed by another when the army appropriations bill is taken up with its proposed increase of the size of the army from a minimum of 150,000 agreed to by the house to the minimum of 170,000 decided upon by the Republican-controlled senate military affairs committee.

HARRY SILLS WAS ARRESTED MONDAY

Harry Sils, a local chauffeur and basketball player for whom the police have been looking for several days, was arrested by Officer Martin late Monday afternoon and turned over to Sheriff Koits.

Sils and his counsel, William D. Brinnier, appeared before Justice Clark at Rosendale this morning to answer the charge of carrying concealed weapons and the hearing was adjourned until June 10. Chris Flanagan appeared for the district attorney's office. Sils was paroled in custody of his counsel.

As told in The Freeman at the time Sam Sachs, an uptown young man, accuses Sils of being one of the gang of city chauffeurs who kidnaped him from the Casino at Rosendale and forced him to fight a member of the gang at pistol point in the town of Ulster. According to the story Sachs told the police he hired Chauncey Snyder to convey him and his lady friend to the dance in Rosendale.

While at the dance the chauffeurs from Kingston created a rough house and took him outside and "beat him up." Later they forced Snyder to drive them to the town of Ulster where they forced Sachs to fight one of the gang. Sachs claimed that Sils was the gang member who produced the revolver and threatened to shoot him if he did not carry out the gang's commands.

Sils is well known to the police and is also known under the name of "Harc Herd" Sils.

German Ambassador at Paris Announces Halt In Fighting—Premier Briand Now Tells Deputies Silesian Issue of Minor Importance and Ruhr Occupation Would Violate Versailles Treaty.

GERMANS KILL MANY POLES

Led By British and German Officers and Roused By Polish Atrocities They Drive Poles Back to All Points.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Berlin, May 24.—Heavy losses have been inflicted upon the Polish insurgents by German volunteers in fighting near Annaberg, in Upper Silesia, according to news from Krapitz today. The Poles counter-attacked, but were repulsed.

The German volunteers, who were led by British and German army officers in the Annaberg sector, are reported to have stopped their advance taking up positions on the line of the Rosenberg, Annaberg and Leschnitz. The German volunteers hold positions all along the right bank of the Oder river, while their officers await further orders.

Five field guns and six machine guns were captured from the Poles by the Bavarian free corps when Hill No. 160, near Annaberg, was carried in a storm attack.

Aroused by excesses in the Namslau district of Lower Silesia, Bavarian troops attacked the town hall of Namslau, seizing machine guns and rifles. They threatened to expel the local Socialist leaders.

Communists in Upper Silesia are fighting against the German volunteers and are attempting to undermine the morale of the Germans. It was declared in advices from Katowitz, Fifty Communists from Berlin were captured by the German volunteers in the fighting.

A British army officer, attached to the Inter-Allied commission in Upper Silesia, was quoted as an eye witness of Polish atrocities. According to this British officer the Italian and British military authorities in Upper Silesia refused to obey the French command that the German free corps be disarmed. The German attack in the region of Annaberg was said to have been made without any previous plan. Officers of the German volunteers said it was caused by Polish atrocities which stirred up the fighting spirit of the volunteers. Some of the Germans had no weapons but knives and hand grenades when the advance began.

MISS LEATE WAS UNCONSCIOUS

From Fumes of Illuminating Gas in Her Room in Tanager Residence on Pine Street—She Is in Benedictine Hospital in Serious Condition.

Miss Nellie Leate of Rhinebeck, a domestic employed at the residence of Major Alfred Tanner of No. 156 Pine street, was found unconscious in her bedroom in the attic about 7:30 o'clock this morning, and the room filled with illuminating gas. She was rushed to the Benedictine Hospital in the ambulance, and her condition is critical.

Major Tanner when questioned this morning said that the girl had entered their employ about three weeks ago. This morning she did not arise as usual, and Mrs. Tanner went upstairs to find out what was the matter. She opened the bedroom door the odor of illuminating gas greeted her, and she saw the form of the girl on the bed. She immediately called a physician.

Dr. Billings after he had administered first aid and called police headquarters and Patrol Driver "Sim" Wood and Officer Martin rushed the girl to the Benedictine Hospital.

Mr. Billings said that from the last examination he had made of the room it looked like a case of attempted suicide. The window was tightly closed and the latch of the door was stuffed with paper. The girl had not moved for the night and when found was fully dressed.

Two reasons for her act are known at the present time, but Dr. Billings determined the police officers that he would make an investigation.

Paris, May 24.—A forty-eight hour truce has been arranged between the German volunteers and the Poles in Silesia, it was officially announced here today by the German ambassador.

Paris, May 24.—France will not occupy the German Ruhr district. Formal announcement to this effect was made in the chamber of deputies this afternoon by Premier Briand.

"If France occupied the Ruhr alone the occupation would not only not provide assurances for payment of indemnity, but would be equivalent to abandonment of the treaty of Versailles," said the premier. "Occupation of the Ruhr is not considered necessary, particularly since the Silesian issue is one of secondary importance. The new German government is showing the greatest willingness to fulfill all its agreements."

TREASURY MAN FINISHING UP

The Treasury Man and Postmaster DeWitt began their last week in the formation of U. S. Treasury Savings Associations Monday and met with an enthusiastic response from employees and factory owners as well as business houses. The Colonial Cigar plant in the Cordia Building, corner of East Strand and Hasbrouck avenue, covering two large floors, was canvassed and addressed by Mr. Mosser. A very fine committee was organized with Nathan Halpern, the manager, chairman; Miss Helen Planthaber, vice chairman and S. Longendyke, committeeman. These will look after the savings plan of the employees and distribute the treasury leaflets from time to time among the members and prospective members of the society. In other words, they are "boosters" for the treasury.

Calls were made at Kingston Dress Company, Hostonian Wais, Dwyer Brothers and Canfield Supply Company. Appointments were made for formation of societies in these establishments Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. These will bring the total of savings societies up to 20 with a number of others waiting, which will be effected by end of this week.

Bankers, employers and business men generally realize the great benefits which will accrue to all if the people learn to save reasonably and sensibly and invest soundly.

Reports at Coming Convention to Show Big Increase in Gifts and Membership—Women May Attain Equality in Church—Plan of Union With Presbyterians Again Taken Up.

The one hundred and fifteenth regular session of the General Synod of the Reformed Church in America that will be convened at Asbury Park, N. J., June 2, 1921, will probably record the greatest growth made in the history of that conservative old, the first Protestant church to be established on American soil.

The gifts to missions, etc., will probably be over the million dollar mark or over $200,000 more than 1920 which was a banner year. There will probably also be a large gain in members but not as large as in gifts. This is the second year of the progress campaign and the first year that it has been fully organized and at work. It is to run for four years yet and no doubt before the end of the period most of the goals will be realized. The great advance of this year is no doubt due to the most part to the enthusiasm of the campaign.

The spirit of the times which demands an equal place for women in the government of all institutions will be felt in the coming meeting of Synod. Two particular Synods are overhauling Synod to strike out word male from Constitution of the Church and thus give women a place in the government of the church. This matter came up two years ago and was rejected as being not yet called for. This year there seems to be an increased demand for the passing of such a measure.

The plan of union for the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches which was presented last year in outline and approved and referred to a committee of which Dr. David J. Burrell of New York city retiring president of Synod is the chairman will come before Synod again this year when this committee makes its report and offers a constitution for adoption. There are five denominations concerned in this movement. The ends aimed at are to recommend to the constituent churches measures for the promotion of charity, benevolence, truth and holiness, to correspond with other churches, to institute and superintend agencies necessary for its general work of evangelization, foreign missions, publication, ministerial relief, schools, colleges, home missions, etc.

"Every church entering into this union retains its distinct individuality, its own creed, government and worship, as well as every power, jurisdiction and right not especially delegated to the central body."

The pension fund for disabled ministers and those dependent upon them will also occupy the attention of this Synod. The fund asked for is one million dollars. However there has been no organized effort to secure this except that made through the progress campaign. There will come before Synod a plan to have the pension with an organization to push it to the utmost. The election of a fifth professor at the Western Theological Seminary at Holland, Michigan, to fill the chair of New Testament Greek and exegesis will be the work of this Synod. The Rev. Jacob Van Der Meulen of Hope College has been nominated for the position by the board of superintendents.

The decrease in the number of young people under Catechetical instruction is causing alarm and steps will no doubt be made to meet this problem.

The Synod will meet in the Grand Avenue Reformed Church at Asbury Park which is undergoing reconstruction at a cost of $25,000 and will be a beautiful edifice when finished.

Synod will meet at 2:30 and the first business will be the election of officers. In the evening the Rev. David J. Burrell of the Marble Collegiate Church of New York city, retiring president of Synod will preach the synodical sermon. The usual routine of Synod will prevail. Friday will be used for the hearing of fraternal delegates from other denominations and the representatives of interdenominational societies and agencies. Friday evening there will be a public meeting for young people's work and the progress campaign. Saturday business a. m. recreation and reception by the Women's Board of Domestic Missions in the afternoon. Sunday Preaching by the new president followed by the Lord's Supper in the morning, preaching by the vice-president in the evening. Monday a. m. Sunday schools and publication. p. m. Foreign Missions.

Tuesday: a. m. education; p. m. Domestic Missions. Tuesday is also Ladies' Day. Wednesday the remaining business and adjournment. The work is finished. There will be probably about 200 delegates with as many more visitors and church officials.

MARY POWELL REMICS.

Gave to Be Made From Piece of Walnut Stanchion.

The graceful Mary Powell, "Handsome Tassel Top," as she was called by the old boatmen of the Hudson, is not altogether to pass into oblivion in anonymous junk, for Judge Character, the historian of the city, having requested ex-Midman John Fischer, the owner of the Powell, to present him with a sufficient amount of wood of that vessel out of which three canoes could be made. Mr. Fischer has presented the judge with pieces of the Black Walnut stanchions which supported the Powell's saloon deck, and have been a part of that vessel from the time of her original construction. The judge will have three canoes made, one for the Hudson County Society, one for the American Women and Historic Preservation Society, and one for the board of trustees of the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

ADMINISTRATION'S
FINANCE PLANS

Government Seeks To Prevent Billions of American Money Going to Europe in Return for Bonds—Would Have Money Used Here To Buy Goods For Shipment Abroad.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, May 24.—President Harding's plan to stimulate American industry, by making the proceeds of foreign bond sales in the United States, applicable to domestic product shipments abroad, today developed these new angles:

1.—American bankers will be given an explicit statement of the administration's attitude that American investment capital should be kept at home, and that money realized on foreign bond issues must not be diverted to purchases of goods in other countries.

2.—The administration is prepared to go to congress and ask for new regulatory powers over financial institutions, in the event there is failure in any quarter to give the government the staunchest support in its new policy.

3.—The treasury and state departments are engaged in consideration of tentative plans of American financiers calling for the forthcoming flotation of Allied bond issues, which may mount into the billions, and may tap American capital in those aggregate sums.

4.—The rehabilitation of Germany industrially and financially through Allied offerings of German reparations bonds, possibly as security for other Allied national and municipal bonds is contemplated.

5.—No objection has been registered officially to offerings of German reparations bonds in the United States, but it is understood that such offerings could only be possible with any degree of success after they have been guaranteed beyond all question by the Allied power floating them, and chiefly benefiting from their disposition.

President Harding and his advisors, it is understood, are to pursue the most vigorous measures in restricting the use of American capital to finance purely American products from domestic factories and farms.

The effect in the near future will be to speed up the movement of raw materials, chiefly cotton, into Germany and contiguous countries. The steps now being outlined are based partly upon a desire to see Germany's recovery to some part of the war indemnity to the Allies.

The administration's concern over Germany is strictly economic. Officials in control of fiscal affairs now realize that Germany's recovery, if delayed, may retard a reasonable adjustment of the Allied war debts due the United States.

Plans now perfected, officials agree, will facilitate the repayment to the United States of the Allied war loans due the United States amounting to more than $10,000,000,000.

understood. When it comes to grasping a situation Governor Miller is by no means slow.

The purpose of the Miller administration is to continue the plan of economy next year, and with the governor directing the work it is certain that there will be further reduction in state expenditures. Former Governor Smith has been talking a little about what was done, saying that no economy was practiced. The reason for this was, undoubtedly, the Tammany Governor was hurt perhaps because someone else had done something he didn't know how to do. The fact is there was definite economy practiced by Governor Miller and the figures prove the case.

Answers to Previous Questions.

1. How can a turtle remain under water three or four hours at a time, then come to the surface and remain above water the same length of time?

Turtles breathe by swallowing air, pumping it in by a process of stretching and retracting the neck and legs. This is a substitute for ordinary style breathing, due to the weight and rigidity of the bony box or shell. Turtle flesh has the power to absorb and store oxygen from the air pumped into the body. This internal supply of oxygen enables the turtle to stay under water for hours, or even days. At the surface it begins to breathe again. Some varieties must come up for air oftener than others.

2. Do prairie dogs and burrowing owls live together. I have heard that the dogs eat the owls, and that the owls eat the dogs.

Prairie dogs and burrowing owls "live together" to the extent that this owl is commonly found occupying prairie dog burrows, but not burrows occupied by the dogs. The owls do eat mice and squirrels in spring, but commonly live on grasshoppers and crickets. The prairie dog eats almost entirely grasses, with a mixture of some other green plants, seeds, and a few insects.

3. Are thistles fragrant? Are they poisonous?

There are about 200 species of thistle known to the north temperate regions, many of them being pleasantly scented. While they are not strictly poisonous, they cause mechanical injuries if eaten, due to the prickly and irritating quality of stems and leaves. The deakoy is said to be able to eat thistles because of its thick tongue, and the gummy quality of its saliva.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

"Eminent psychologists" are the originators of the tests. It is a fair assumption that they, too, determine what are the correct answers since it is inconceivable that examiners of ordinary intelligence voluntarily would give a zero rating to either of the answers cited. Or is there no such thing as ordinary intelligence?

Psychology seems to have determined. If the test-questions and rating of the answers are a fair estimate of what is required, that unless answers are precisely what the psychologists have determined they should be, a person is lacking in intelligence and is a mental delinquent. But who except the psychologists gave them the right to determine the correctness or incorrectness of answers like those quoted? Certainly it is indicative of great egotism for any man or class of men to say there can be only one correct answer to such questions. Mental experts passing on the mental qualifications or age of other persons should build their structure on a foundation of common sense.

If there is any reason why a school teacher should hesitate to subscribe to a loyalty test it should be announced. The school is the most sacred of our institutions, and if loyalty is not implanted in the minds of the children when they are going to school it may not take root later. If the teacher will not subscribe how can it be expected that the pupil will? Governor Miller's attitude on this bill was surely in accord with that of the people who believe in "America First." He said it did not lower his dignity to wear allegiance to the constitution when he took the office.

When Governor Miller returns from Lakewood he intends to make a tour of inspection of the various state institutions. It will require a month or more but it will be time well spent. After his trip he will have a better insight to what is needed and when it comes time for appropriations next year he will not have to take his information from someone else. The journey of the governor will be helpful in more ways than one. It will help him and if any of the institutions heads have a case to present they will have no trouble in being

PEEMAN WANT ADS. BRING RESULTS

The Eng-Daw-Yd Pagoda, Burma.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

While there is a considerable amount of unrest in many parts of India proper, the people of Burma, which is governed as a part of India and yet is geographically separate from it, seem to be living contentedly. Geographical and social conditions and the economic situation flowing from them undoubtedly have much to do with this. Burma knows little of the fear of famine or the pinch of poverty. Its lands are productive, it is rich in minerals, it is not over-populated, and it is free from the elaborate caste system which is a tremendous handicap to India, both socially and economically.

Ripping and practically all other writers about the East have pointed out repeatedly that it is difficult at best for westerners to understand the oriental peoples. If the observer from the West wishes to tackle this admittedly difficult problem by easy stages, perhaps he could find no better place to start than Burma. In a number of respects there is less of a gulf between the life and customs of the Burmese, and those of the West than will be found in the comparison is made with any other eastern country.

The Indian is in most cases a sober individual. The lower castes must make life with desperate seriousness because of its hardness and the difficulty of clinging to it. The higher castes are sedate, and given to speculative philosophy. The Chinaman is an enigma. His emotions are difficult to fathom. The people of the Mohammedan countries are marked by a quiet dignity.

The Burmese Love Life.
In contrast with these other peoples of Asia, and almost alone among them, the Burmese are frank, open, happy-lovers of life. Their women are not secluded, but are among the freest women in the world. Both men and women are lovers of music and dancers of bright clothing. Because of their spontaneity and friendliness they have been dubbed "the Irish of the Orient."

Burma is a country of many tribes, but practically all of them are of the same racial strain. Shans, Karens, Sakhins, Chins and Palaungs are among those living in the outlying parts of the country, though the Karens and to a certain extent the others are to be found in parts of lower Burma, a more heavily settled section which is most easy of access to the outside world. It is the Burmese, however, who constitute the dominant element with the highest culture, and give color to Burma as it is known to most westerners who visit the land.

The Burmese of the Burmese. That is lower Burma and the basin of the Irrawaddy river, is a land of parades, the shrines of Buddhism, thousands upon thousands of these bell-shaped structures surrounded by gilded spires and tinkling bells have been built. Many of them have fallen into ruin, but others are still in good repair. They are the symbols of the land which the Buddhist religion has given to the people of Burma. It is their belief that the surest way of "acquiring merit" and achieving holy rest after death is to erect a pagoda; and very few Burmese who are able to add to the country's forest of pagoda spires fail to do so.

No Aristocracy, Few Poor.
There are no noble classes among the Burmese, no aristocracy, few who are very wealthy, and few very poor. While the caste system as a system does not exist in the country, there are natural classes of people who are ranked upon as described by their relations and with whom gradually an aristocracy is bred by the majority of the people. Unfortunately, too, these classes are hereditary. They are the great officers, the descendants of the former palace slaves and the beggars. The general attitude toward these underclasses is one of the remotest in Burma; they are despised and are often treated with contempt. Their religion requires that they should not eat meat, and Burmese will not even become drivers of vehicles in cities because they feel that such a calling entails a certain measure of cruelty to horses. Yet their attitude toward crippled and maimed humans is the height of unkindness. Such unfortunate are considered to be in the degraded classes along with the grave diggers and the beggars, and are denied association with the normal population.

One custom among the Burmese that cannot fail to arouse comment from westerners is the prevalence of smoking and the peculiar turn it has taken. Smoking is indulged in literally by men, women and children. Cigarettes and cigars of a huge size are preferred, often a foot or more in length and with a circumference in proportion. Children of all ages use these gigantic "smokes," and it is not uncommon even to see an infant in arms puffing away at a huge cheroot. The habit is not as injurious as might be expected because the tobacco used is adulterated with a considerable proportion of milder materials.

Their Marriage Customs.
Marriage in Burma is not a matter of great ceremony or ritualism. Formally eating together, usually before witnesses, constitutes a couple man and wife. Though the theory is otherwise, a girl usually selects her husband, and is given to him by her parents. If a bride is dissatisfied with her husband she may run away from him and return to her parents. She is promptly returned by them, but may repeat the procedure. After she has run away three times and been returned three times, she may leave for good, it being assumed that it is impossible for her husband to retain her. She is then in effect divorced.

The rule works the other way about also. If parents do not consider a suitor eligible and prohibit a match, the maiden has only to run away to him three times, after which the parents must not interfere, but must consider the marriage a thing accomplished.

Where Burma touches India proper on the latter's eastern border, it is bounded by Bengal and Assam. Farther to the north it touches southeastern Tibet. Along its eastern border, Burma is in contact with China for a considerable distance. The Chinese at one time claimed sovereignty over the land. The lower part of Burma's eastern boundary is formed by French Cochinchina and Siam; and to the south and west lies the Bay of Bengal. The total area of Burma is slightly less than that of Texas, our largest state, while its population is in excess of 12,000,000, several million more than that of our most populous state, New York.

Climate and Resources.
The greater part of Burma is in the tropics and during half the year much of it is very hot. This heat is especially trying to Europeans in parts of the delta region where the humidity is high. In some sections more than 20 feet of rain falls each year. There is considerable loss of life among natives in some parts of the country from snakes, spiders, poisonous insects and wild animals. Just as India has its Simla to which officials and others journey in the hot season, so Burma has its hill stations. Marree, only 42 miles from Mandalay, but nearly 2,000 feet higher. This summer capital makes it possible for Europeans to stand the rigors of the Burma climate.

Burma's mineral wealth has long made it one of the treasure houses of the Orient. One of the richest silver-mined areas in the world is situated in the northeastern section. Mopah, a short distance north of Mandalay, largely supplies the world with rubies. Silver and precious stones were among the things most highly prized in the old East. But Burma also possesses modern treasures: tungsten, a necessity in an age of steel and electricity; tin, essential in performing the world's sanitary work and in equipping the households; and petroleum, the fuel of today.

BOY SCOUTS

SCOUT SERVICE

In a report to the national council headquarters, a scoutmaster fills in the blank asking for comment upon his troop's community good turns as follows: "Did everything they could, anywhere," which seems to be typical of the spirit of scouts throughout the country. The jobs aren't always the pleasantest sort, either, or the easiest, but when a scout tackles the thing he does it "for all he's worth," with brain and brawn and a right good will. Here are a few little things scouts in Birmingham did, in their "leisure hours." It looks as if these boys were not only going to be good citizens in the future, but are good citizens here and now.

One scout repaired a bridge, cleaned mud out of two curbs and drained a ditch: half-hour time.

Five scouts removed a large pile of brush where trees had been trimmed up: 15 minutes each.

Five scouts repaired a street where it had washed out by piling rocks and brush and then dirt on top: one hour's time.

Two scouts buried a dead hen, that the city health department would not remove: 30 minutes' time.

Four scouts dug a drainway to let standing water out of the street, and opened up ten sewers and 23 gutters.

Two scouts repaired a bridge and opened four sewers and 20 gutters: ten hours.

One scout cut a dead tree which stood close by the passageway and was very dangerous to those passing: one hour.

Eleven scouts worked two hours getting water out of basement of a church, then built a fire and dried out the place.

Three scouts repaired four sewers, also raked up a lot of leaves from around a house and burned them, as they were dangerous to the community: one and one-half hours.

CHIEF SEA SCOUT REPORTS.

At the last national council meeting the chief sea scout, James A. Wilder, made this report:

"We have found our sea logs. After some backing and filling as to the best methods, we have, with the advice of some 400 executives and others, settled on the course to be steered. This decision has steadied the sea-scout program and the taffrail log begins to register more speed. November, 1920, was our banner month, followed by the record breakers, December and January, 1920 and 1921. As we go to press, February, 1921, has already broken the record again. We have registered more ships in the last five months than in the previous three years. This is at the rate of 110 per cent increase annually.

"We have the assurance that the sea-scout program is being pushed as the official older boy program, in 57 cities. Ship's papers or preliminary steps have already been taken by 104 scout centers. In some cities, notably San Francisco, Honolulu and others, the program has been under way for several years without the registry of a single ship, because of a note to thoroughly train leadership before admitting boys to membership. The sea-scouts, at the rate we are crowding at present, will be 200 "ships" in 1922. If the last four months' increase in our number is maintained we will be, in six months, the largest seaship training course or nautical school in the United States. Swift increase is not expected in the face of such slogans as 'You must know it all the time.' 'Don't start anything you can't finish.' 'Practice makes perfect.' 'No frills.' 'The ship is what you make her.' 'Don't give up the ship.' Nevertheless, we're already half the size of Annapolis, and as far as plain sailing—us, we're giving the same boat-seamanship program.

"Fifty nifty boats have been loaned to bona-fide seascouts, according to regulations, and to certain sea-scout training bases. Five hundred are still available for really determined seascouts of seagoing (or second) grade.

"The slogan is now, 'run your troop like a ship,' and in a seamanlike manner. Seascout centers are asked to avoid fecklessly practicing slack seamanship and frauds, and the local shipping committees are required to take a pledge that no boatwork or small boat sailing shall take place until the ship's company have qualified as life-savers. This sailing season may not spell numbers, but spells quality."

TO KEEP TROOPS GOING.

"I have a question, too, Mr. Case Scout. This season about the hardest time in the whole year to keep things going in our troop. There is little doing besides regular meetings." Can anybody help out in this case? "Oh, here I can, Case Scout. We had the same trouble in our troop until last winter, when we arranged a secret winter and limited our funds and members. That gave our 'troop' a pretty good idea about what we do in winter. Case Scout in Boy's Life.

HANDICRAFT FOR GIRLS

EASTER WEEK GAMES.

"Bunny Eyes" is an excellent game for a party. A large rabbit's head with eyes spaced the same distance apart as your own eyes, must be prepared upon paper. Cut out the eye openings, hang the head in a doorway, and conceal the doorway around it with cloth. The game consists in the girls posing one at a time behind the rabbit's head, with eyes directly in back of the eye openings, while the boys stand several feet in front of the rabbit's face and write upon paper the names of the girls in whom they think the eyes belong. When the girls have posed, the boys exchange places with them, and pose while the girls guess.

Figure 1 shows a pattern for a rabbit's head, with squares marked off to make easy the process of enlarging. Each of the small squares upon the diagram represents a width of $\frac{1}{8}$ inch, in making the large drawing, first rule 14 vertical lines and 24 horizontal lines $\frac{3}{8}$ inch apart, then letter the vertical lines and number the horizontal lines, and draw within each of the large squares what is shown in the corresponding small squares.

Egg tennis requires a playing surface marked off upon a table by means of tapes (Fig. 2), one tape across the center to separate the courts, and two tapes to separate the courts from the home goals.

A blown egg for a ball, and rackets made of cardboard tacked to stick handles (Fig. 3) are required.

To play the game, a player stands at each end of the table, the egg shell is placed upon the center tape, and each player flays the egg with the object to blow it over her opponent's goal line. If the shell is fanned off the side edge of the table, replace it at the point of dropping off. A goal counts 1 point, the game is 21 points.

An Easter hat trimming contest makes merry fun. Provide small untrimmed cardboard sailor shapes (Fig. 4), also grape paper of several colors, ribbon, glue, pins and scissors; and allow 15 minutes for trimming.

If you want place cards for an Easter party table, make the little hump-tumpy figures shown in Fig. 7, whose head is a vegetable for small candies. The head is supported on a cardboard framework (Fig. 8), made of two pieces of cardboard (A and B).

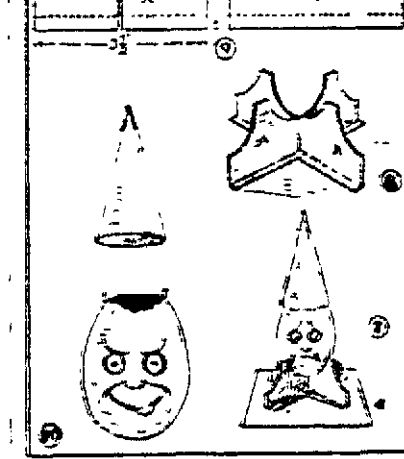

Fig. 9. To make it possible to fit one piece of the frame over the other, the edges must be notched as shown. Fold out the bottom edges, also the pieces together, and glue in a cardboard base. Figure 10 shows how to open the end of the egg to form the mouth opening, when hump-tumpy's features, and his, peeked out.

FARM POULTRY

LICE INJURE LITTLE POULTS

Supposedly Mysterious Trouble Often Proves to Be Nothing More or Less Than Vermin.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Lice are very destructive to turkey poulters both when very small and when partly grown. Frequently turkey poulters die off from some supposedly mysterious trouble, which when properly investigated proves to be nothing more nor less than lice. Keep the newly-hatched poulters free from lice, if possible, by properly dusting the hen used to hatch the eggs. Then watch the poulters for head lice. These will be found burrowing into the skin on top of the head above and in front of the eyes and under the throat. If any are discovered, grease these places carefully with plain lard, lard to which a few drops of kerosene have been added or by using a drop of olive oil. Too much grease may prove fatal to the poults.

As the poulters grow, lice will sometimes be present in harmful numbers and yet escape the notice of the person who does not know where to look for them. If one looks in the hollows or creases on the upper side of the wing between the quills of the main wing feathers, they may find hiding places there literally swarming with lice. Grease applied to these places will prove effective in getting rid of the lice.

Lice may also occur on other parts of the body and must be combated. If your young turkeys are droopy and unthrifty and you have examined them without finding any lice, do not be too sure that none are present until you have tried the following:

Submerge the little turkey in warm water, holding it with just its bill sticking out, so that it can breathe, until the entire plumage is wet. Then remove it from the water and wrap in a light-colored cloth which has previously been warmed, and hold it in this manner for several minutes. Then take the cloth off. If there are no lice on it, the turkey is free from them, and some other explanation than lice must be sought for its condition. Usually, however, a surprisingly large number of lice will be found on the cloth, even in cases where a cursory examination had convinced the owner that it was absolutely free.

HANDY DUST BOX FOR FOWLS

Confined Hens Should Be Given Opportunity for Bathing—It Discourages Vermin.

When the flock is confined in laying houses the hens miss the opportunity afforded when they are on range to pick out a likely spot and take a dust bath. It is just as important to a hen's well-being that she be able to take a dust bath when cooped up as well as when on range. Besides, it provides her with the sort of ammunition which nature intended she should use in combating vermin and natural parasites. Hens that have simple facilities for dust baths will not be "vermined off" by lice.

FEEDING PIGEONS IN WINTER

Failure to Provide Proper Kind and Quantity of Grain in Winter Causes Falling Off.

Neglect in feeding the pigeons and amount of grain to give is a good example of the cause of the marked falling off in the production of squabs in winter. More time and effort is required to feed and manage pigeons at this time of the year, but the effort is well paid for the extra work.

DEFECTIVE TREES FOR FUEL

Specimens Not Suitable for Good Timber Should Be Removed and Used to Cut Fuel Sticks.

It is just as possible to remove wood trees from the stand for as it is to weed the garden; besides the wood from the crooked, defective trees, and those that are not good timber species will make good fuel.

What Happened to Mary

By DORA MOLLAN

(© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The girl occupying the stool nearest the window, fourth from the corner on the sixth floor of a huge skyscraper, wore on a certain day in January a bright pink blouse. It caught the eye of a man standing in the window on the corresponding floor of a hotel directly opposite.

Fascinated, he watched her deft fingers as, with the precision of a machine, she packed celluloid toilet articles into satin lined cases which she took from a pile beside her. She did not make a lost motion.

When the girl came to the end of the pile of boxes she turned on her stool and looked out of the window. Her glance met that of the man in the window opposite. She smiled. He acknowledged it by waving his hand. She returned the salutation, then as a boy deposited a fresh pile of boxes beside her, returned to her work.

With a start Strong Lewis remembered the warning words of his wife spoken as he left their country home for a business trip to the city. With a guilty feeling he hurried into hat and overcoat and out of the hotel. The episode, however, had not escaped the attention of the other girl who sat at the same table. "I'll tell Johnny on you, Mary," she giggled.

"Guess if I always keep them at that distance, Sadie, Johnny'll not have any kick coming," the other replied. But Johnny did have a kick coming that very night, and this is why.

When Strong Lewis returned to his hotel room it was verging on five o'clock. With the instinctive movement of a man who is not used to being cooped up indoors, he walked directly to the window. The girl in the bright pink blouse sat in the same place. Her fingers flew back and forth at the same task.

"Been at it all day—and every day, I suppose," the man soliloquized. "How on earth can she stand it?" Then his wife's warning, which hadn't been far from his thoughts all day, came into the foreground again. Muttering something about "taking a chance," and "a man named Brodie," Strong Lewis watched the opposite window intently. The girls were making preparations to depart.

He hurried down into the street. Girls singly and in groups, were stringing out of the doorway just across from the hotel. But they were coats! How could he tell, then, which one he wanted? Ah! There she was; an unbuttoned coat disclosed a pink blouse.

Mary Cummings and her cousin, Sadie, accompanied by the girl who lived next door, had started to walk home together, as was their custom, when Lewis approached them. (He addressed Mary. "Could I speak to you—on a matter which may interest you?")

All the warnings which reach city girls from every side concerning the danger in accepting the advances of unknown men rushed through the minds of the three girls. Sadie shook her head, and that decided Mary. "She wasn't going to be loused by Sadie just because she was two years older and many degrees plainer."

So Mary answered the stranger with a polite "Sure." Whereupon the other girls walked ahead, turning around occasionally to be sure that Mary and the stranger man were following. Then they hastened their pace to hear the shameful tidings to Sadie's mother, who was also Mary's aunt.

Strong Lewis did most of the talking until they reached the doorway of the flat building where the cousins lived. There Mary seemed to have something to say, the while they were watched by two curious pairs of eyes from an open window above. But when Mary entered the flat the window was closed and her aunt confronted her.

"You're aunt Mary, and it ain't for me to say, but I won't have any such goings on by anybody what boards with me. Think of your mother what is dead—and think of Johnny."

"My heart's paid till Saturday, and you can't tell—perhaps I'll leave her for then." With a toss of her head Mary went to the room which she shared with Sadie and closed the door. Soon Sadie appeared with the excuse of wanting a handkerchief and, returning, reported to her mother that "Mary was doling up in best dress."

Sadie and her mother listened until they heard Mary leave her room and start down the stairs. Hastened they opened the front window and looked out. A taxi cab and a man jumped out to help Mary. Sadie was sure it was the girl who had loused.

The man from next door came over to discuss the scandal and many suppositions were brought forward before Johnny belated came for his regular Monday evening call upon Mary. But the joy which they expected to derive from the telling of the news was spoiled by Johnny, who merely shrugged his shoulders and remarked: "Sadie's because per didn't get him herself, eh?" to Sadie, whom he disliked.

Nevertheless, it was a selected Johnny who, hands thrust deep in his pockets, slouched away and made for the corner saloon. For he had brought the good news of a raise and had planned to broach the suggestion that "maybe by time they might be getting married."

Disgusted by the stirring incident of the women, for Johnny had always rated Mary just a little below the angels, he decided over a desperate lemon soda that at least he'd give the girl a chance to explain. But Johnny couldn't imagine standing the suspense of not knowing for another day, so he hung around the saloon till closing time. Then he hid in the dark doorway of the flat building where Mary lived.

At half an hour after midnight a taxi stopped in front of the house and a man helped Mary out. Johnny heard the parting words:

"Then I'll be at the Woodville station to meet you at 6.30 day after tomorrow," the man said.

"Sure," said Mary, "and I never can thank you enough for the grand time I had tonight."

Not very encouraging words these for a man who wants to believe the best of his sweetheart.

Running up the steps, Mary stopped suddenly as she spied a man hiding in the shadows. "Mary," said Johnny in a hoarse voice, putting a hand on her shoulder. "Mary," but he could go no further. For Mary's face shone with relief and happiness at the sight of him. And Mary's voice was bubbling with eagerness to explain.

"Oh, Johnny," she said, "I've been in the Winter Garden! All my life I've wanted to go to one of them swell shows, and when Mr. Lewis says: 'What can I do to persuade you to come to the country?' I says: 'Take me there.' And Johnny, all the time he talked to me about the great big house he is going to bamboozle his grandmother into lending him the money to build when she comes to visit them, and his wife says she can't come if he don't bring some one home from the city to help her do the work, and he saw me in the window and likes the way I work; and he says there's a little house we can live in, and we'll go day after tomorrow—Johnny—"

Mary paused for breath.

"But we can't live together in a little house, Mary, until—" Johnny's voice was trembling with the hope of supreme happiness.

"Of course not, Johnny," Mary answered his unspoken question.

FEASTS THAT WERE FEASTS!

State Dinners of Old Romans Surely Never Have Been Duplicated by Other Peoples.

Those who think the Thanksgiving table is the limit in plenty might consider a small part of the menu of a state dinner given in the time of Nero. It should be remembered that everyone ate everything that was served, and when the stomach was stuffed to its physical limit there were long feasters at hand to fiddle the throat and relieve the feaster of what he had already gorged himself with. The meals were eaten with the diners at full length on cushions with their heads resting on the laps of slave girls, other guests, or supported by their elbows. One feast included:

Dormice stewed with honey and pepper, sausages, served on individual plates, plums with kernels of pomegranates, pea-hen eggs with wheat ears hidden in the center, peas, beef kidneys, African eggs, custard, lobster, fowl crammed with oysters, a sow powdered with crystal sugar, rabbit paraded with fish skin, relikes, wild boar, dates, almonds, little pigs stuffed with sweetmeats, blackbirds' tongues, grapes, locust fried in honey, honey flavored jelly blocks, oysters broiled, humming birds, breads, cheese cakes, whole thrushes with bones removed, sugar-loaves crusted with caviar, haunch of a bear, fried snails, cold tarts dipped in boiling honey, bacon dripping with goose liver gravy, chitterlings, eels stuffed with branded peaches, drinkable perfumes, salad of chestnuts, pickles and hearts of roses, wine-flavored whipped cream floating on chilled turtle soup, and many, many other dishes, washed down with over one hundred varieties of wine.

Wedding Day in Borneo.

On the wedding day, in Borneo, the bride and bridegroom are brought from opposite ends of the village to the spot where the ceremony is to be performed. They are made to sit on two bars of iron, that blessings as lasting and health as vigorous may attend the pair. A cigar and beet-leaf, prepared with aromatic, are now put into the hands of the bride and bridegroom.

One of the priests then waves two fans over the heads of the couple, and in a long address to the Supreme Being calls down blessings upon the pair, and implores that peace and happiness may attend them. After the heads of the affianced have been knocked against each other three or four times, the bridegroom puts the prepared beet-leaf and cigar into the mouth of the bride, while she does the same to him, whom she thus acknowledges as her husband.

Mrs. Westland—Mr. and Mrs. Joe, seven seem to lead an ideal life.

Mrs. Macdon—Yes, I often remarked about it.

Mrs. Westland—I wonder what their secret is?

Mrs. Macdon—Well, Mrs. Joe never told me what she does, but she has a husband with pockets or plans on Christmas—Brooklyn Standard.

Only Party.

Mother—"So you wish to have me daughter for your wife?" Daughter—"Father, that's mad, and particularly that you may be my mother-in-law."

PYTHIANS WILL NEED ROOMS

Requests for reservations of rooms by those planning to attend the state convention of the Knights of Pythias, which will be held in Kingston the week of July 25, are coming in to the local committee at a rate which promises the breaking of all attendance records for these conventions.

Anyone in Kingston having a desirable room or rooms which they are willing to rent for one or several days in the week of July 25, will be doing a service to Kingston by notifying the Chamber of Commerce immediately of the number of rooms they have available, the convenience offered and the price wanted so that the Chamber of Commerce may be in a position to furnish a list to the local committee of the Knights of Pythias.

Formosa—Anniversary of the Battle of Lexington, 1921.—It seems near home when we are but a few miles from Manila. And when you hear slanders about Japanese being unfriendly to Americans, tell those who listen that all such stuff is propaganda from Irish-California sources. We are both well and shall return to Uster county so soon as we shall have been to Kiao Chow, Chemulpo, Saghalien, Manchuria and Yapt! It's a well named fragment of this dimly firmament.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONNAIRE

Following are the first answers received to the Industrial Home questionnaire published in The Freeman several days ago:

1. Yes, we all know that the Industrial Home needs a hospital and we want to help in a substantial way.

2. Yes, we know how mumps and measles search out each child in a family and we want to make it possible to separate the sick children of the Industrial Home from the well children.

3. Yes, we all realize that the well children are deprived of school privileges when an epidemic enters our homes, and we will work to make it possible for the well children of the Industrial Home to attend school the full school year.

4. Yes, we are sure that if the first case of sickness was placed in a separate building the disease would not spread. So let us have an interest in keeping the children well.

5. Yes, we have heard of negotiations having been made for the purchase of a house and lot to be equipped for a hospital for the Industrial Home and we all think this a practical and necessary step and we want to have a part in this splendid work. We will send our contributions immediately to your treasurer, Mrs. V. B. Van Wageningen, 114 Elmendorf street, Kingston, telephone 1114-W, for we feel sure that the people of Uster county cannot place their dollars where they will reap such rich returns as they do when given to the Industrial Home, where many little homeless children are living under real home conditions.

SATURDAY IS "POPPY DAY"

Boy and Girl Scouts Will Then Sell 5,000 Flowers Made by French War Orphans at 10 Cents Each and Money Will All Go To Children in Distressed France Through American Legion.

The local Memorial Poppy Committee met at the city hall Monday night and made arrangements to dispose of Kingston's allotment of five thousand poppies. Millions of silk poppies have been made by the little war orphans of France and sent over here to be sold for ten cents each. The proceeds will go to Robert H. Tyndall, the treasurer of the American committee and who is national treasurer of the American Legion. Every dollar realized by the campaign will be used for the fatherless children in the devastated, now called liberated regions of France. These little victims of the war are fifty per cent tubercular, due to malnutrition and the lack of green grass, trees and vegetation.

The local committee consists of Mayor Canfield, Mrs. T. J. Hickey, Senator Charles W. Walton, R. C. Dittus, Ward B. Everett, Judge Fowler, Miss Martha H. Davis, Anna Heaney, William C. DeWitt, Cornelius Hume, S. M. Watts, Eugene B. Carey and William H. Stork.

The Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts will sell the poppies on Saturday, next which will be "Poppy Day" in Kingston.

France has adopted our Memorial Day, and on May 30th thousands of these French orphans will place flowers and wreaths upon the mounds marked with the white crosses on Flanders and other war scarred fields.

The American Legion has adopted the poppy of Flanders as its memorial insignia, and the American and French Children's League of which President Harding is the president of the American committee, is appealing to every patriot to wear a poppy on Saturday or Memorial Day in commemoration of our dead heroes and to show loyalty to the flag and allegiance to the cause which has made us a nation.

The local committee decided to confine the sale to Saturday so as not to interfere with any other effort being made locally. Every Kingstonian reveres the memories of our heroes who are gone. Every Kingstonian wants to help Kingston to help one hundred of these little French war orphans gain health and strength. Buy and wear a poppy on "Poppy Day."

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, May 24.—The stock market was irregular again in the early trading today. One of the features was the falling of 3 1/4 points in Remington Typewriter. This drop was due to the deferring of the dividend of both classes of the preferred stock. Studebaker declined 1/4 to 73 1/4. Crucible advanced 1/4 to 75. Southern Railway declined 1/4 to 20 1/4. General Asphalt moved up 1/4 to 69 1/4.

Republic Steel was down 1/4 to 58, which showed a slight improvement from its lower level after dividend payments were dropped. Chesapeake and Ohio was up 1/4 to 57 1/4 which was also moderately above the low range reached after dividend action last week. California Petroleum, which had been one of the strongest features in the Petroleum group for some time was offered in three blocks falling over 1 point in the first 15 minutes. The steel industrials were heavier. Baldwin dropping over one point to below 84. U. S. Steel dropped 1/4 to 82 1/4. Pierce-Arrow first advanced 1/4 to 26 and then dropped to 25 1/4.

Price movements continued mixed all through the first hour. Mexican Petroleum moved up from 148 1/4 to 151 1/4. Pierce-Arrow preferred which closed yesterday at 64 dropped to 61 1/4 while the common stock after declining to 25 1/4 moved up to 26. California Petroleum declined a steadier tone and after declining to 43, in supply falling 2 points to 41 1/4. Baldwin Locomotive was the most active issue in the steel group, falling from 84 1/4 to 82 1/4. Crucible Steel after selling down to 76 1/4, rallied to 77. U. S. Steel was steady, ranging from 82 1/4 to 83.

The market developed a steadier tone in the late afternoon following the sharp declines after midday. Central Leather preferred rallied 1 point and Pierce-Arrow preferred came back 2 points to 61. Studebaker after falling to 72 1/4 rallied to 74 1/4. Baldwin Locomotive sold down to a new low for the year of 75 1/4 and then recovered to above 80.

The passing of the Central Leather preferred dividend coming on top of the deferring of the Remington Typewriter dividends caused a heavy selling movement during the afternoon. Central Leather preferred fell 1 1/2 points to 71; the common over 1 point to 35 1/4; Pierce-Arrow preferred 6 1/2 points to 57 1/4; the common 3 points to 23 1/4 and Baldwin Locomotive over 5 points to 79 1/4.

The market closed unsettled; Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds irregular.

CORBETT FINDS CARPENTIER FIT TO GIVE DEMPSEY GOOD BATTLE

Frenchman Has Held Every Pugilistic Title In Own Country and Has Triumphed After Reverses That Would Have Dismayed Most Men—Heavy Enough.

(By James J. Corbett, Former Heavyweight Champion of the World. Copyright 1921 by International News Service.)

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 24.—Brilliant and interesting in the extreme are the fight careers of Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier, the dapper French fighter who will try to win the world's championship July 2.

The rise of Dempsey to the championship was meteoric. It was impressive, too.

Carpentier's ascendancy to the European heavyweight championship is a long story of unending persistence, marked here and there in his more youthful days with reverses that would have discouraged many a boxer.

When Dempsey launched forth on his big drive toward the title he was a man full grown. He had the strength of an ox and above all the fighting instinct. Once he got started no man was able to stand before him until he toppled over big Jess Willard at Toledo. He blazed a trail down the line of opponents that was dotted with quick knock outs and the two fights he has had since winning the crown, with Mike and Brennan, have resulted the same way.

Carpentier's record and his experience are much different, though.

he has stopped some of the biggest men who have crawled through the ropes in recent years.

The French champion is the only boxer I have ever heard of who has held the championship of his native country in every division from bantam to heavyweight. And, mind you, it was only a short time before the outbreak of the world war that he got his full growth and strength. In the early days of his career he was a lithe, anaemic looking chap who did not appear capable of standing a beating, let alone dealing out punishment to an opponent. Yet Carpentier triumphed, and his success entitles him to unlimited praise and very serious consideration as a candidate for the world's heavyweight championship.

Here are two men, both in their prime. When a man is under 30 he is at his best. Furthermore, both fighters are thoroughly experienced. The fact that one will have an advantage over the other in a physical way is not to be taken too seriously considering that the advantage will not be great. I have always contended that a man weighing 170 pounds is big enough to win the heavyweight championship if he possesses the punch, the science and the instinct to fight.

Carpentier has proven by his remarkable rise from a frail boy as a bantamweight to a thick-chested, heavy-limbed, swift moving and hard-hitting heavyweight that he was born of fighting stock. Dempsey, with Irish, Scotch and Indian blood in his veins, came by his fighting instinct just as naturally.

When they get into the ring at Jersey City we will see a pair of finished gladiators—the best two continents have produced in many years. We hope to see each at his best and with both in training and more than a month to go there is no doubt in my mind but that either will be physically fit to go anywhere from ten to 40 rounds should the contest prove to be a pretty even thing with Dame Victory hesitating over the resin-filled canvas, waiting to drop the survivor of a great battle. Under such conditions, and with the fight limited to 12 rounds, the boxing public has a chance of seeing one of the greatest fights pugilism has ever known.

A community cafeteria supper will be served from 5:30 to 9 o'clock to which everybody is most cordially invited to participate. Music by McLane's three-piece orchestra in the evening. A delightful birthday surprise party was held in honor of Miss Nettie Bush at her home Saturday evening. Games were played and dancing was enjoyed by all. Luncheon was served at midnight. The guests departed in the wee small hours of the morning, vowing Miss Bush a royal entertainer and also wishing her many Van Vleet happy birthdays.
